1.0 Position Purpose

A Lecturer (Teaching Focused) in Clinical Education is expected to make informed contributions to the teaching effort of the School of Medicine and Dentistry and to carry out activities to maintain and develop scholarly, and/or professional activities relevant to the discipline of medicine. At Level B, a Teaching Focused Lecturer is expected to perform the full academic responsibilities and related administration in support of the development, coordination and delivery of courses in the Doctor of Medicine.

The Senior Lecturer (Teaching Focused) in Clinical Education is expected to make significant contributions to the teaching effort of the School of Medicine and Dentistry and play a major role in scholarship, research and/or professional activities. The Senior Lecturer is expected to make independent and original contributions to research which have significant impact on the field of expertise.

This position offers a unique opportunity for a practicing public health physician or a public health qualified academic to develop an interest and gain skills in medical education. The role forms part of an academic team that oversees the learning and assessment of medical students in general practice settings and contributes to delivery of relevant aspects of the curriculum in the Doctor of Medicine (MD) program, which encompasses public health, epidemiology, evidence-based medicine and primary health care.

This position aims to ensure and verify that students in the MD acquire the understanding and skills related to the specialty of public health required of an Australian medical graduate. It also contributes to curriculum development, delivery and assessment relevant to their area of expertise.
